Bridge invests in tumor locator

Bridge Investment Fund LP in Cleveland participated in a recent $5 million financing round for Navotek Medical Ltd. in Haifa, Israel. Navotek is developing a device that precisely locates tumors in the body so that they can be targeted by chemotherapy or radiation. Dr. Roger Macklis, a radiation oncologist at the Cleveland Clinic and a medical adviser for Navotek, helped introduce the Israeli company to Bridge, said the venture capital firm's managing partner, Michael Goldberg. Bridge invests internationally in device makers that could develop connections with medical institutions in Northeast Ohio
