Pittsburgh, Cleveland talking

April 17, 2007

In an effort to develop more business opportunities for biotech- and health sciences-related startup companies in both regions, the Pittsburgh Life Sciences Greenhouse is expected to announce plans to consider a formal collaboration with Cleveland-based economic development group BioEnterprise. The heads of both groups are said to be preparing to publicly discuss their plans and a timeline for deciding if and when they'll team up at a health-care conference today in Cleveland.
